WHAT DYSART COUNCIL DID

In looking over the minutes of the Dysart council we are reminded that voting time is fast approaching and though things on the municipal political front have been quiet, the council have set up the necessary machinery to care for an election if necessary.

Election date this year will be Saturday, December 3. Voting in Wards I and II will take place in the Canadian Legion hall, Haliburton with the following election officials in charge.

Ward I, poll 1A, deputy returning officer, Richard Clarke; poll clerk, Lila Auston. Poll 1B, d.r.o., Cliff Kellett; p.c., Dora Iles.

Ward II, poll 1C, d.r.o., Wanda Orr; p.c., Marion Gould. Poll 1D, d.r.o., W. A. Kaye; p.c., Florence Johnston.

Poll 5, Eagle Lake Community Church, d.r.o., Robert Moore; p.c., Emily Schroter.

The monthly meeting of the Dysart municipal council was held a little earlier than usual this month due to the hunting.

We see that our relief accounts for the month of October were a shade higher than for the same period a year ago, totalling $899.37. Accounts last October amounted to $878.32. However, we note that this is the first time this year that relief accounts have exceeded those of the corresponding period of a year ago.

The following conveyances were approved by council as required by by-law 59-8, subject to approval of the Department of Municipal Affairs.

Lots 8 and 9 in the township of Dysart from Vestina Thomas to William Ernest Turner. Lot 4, con. IX in the township of Dudley from Frank W. Cowling to Wanda Orr. Lot 14, con. VII in the township of Dysart between Samuel Fountain and Lavina Fountain, vendors, and Yves Sicard. Lot 7, con. IV from Thomas Woods Sr. to Thomas Woods Jr.

Conveyance was also recommended of the original road allowance between lots 20 and 21, con. VII in the township of Guilford from the Municipality of Dysart et al to Jan Rich Investments Ltd.

That if Hayward Jones Ltd. deposit a deed for Block A on the proposed subdivision plan on lot 18, con. II in the township of Havelock with the municipal clerk, the Department of Municipal Affairs will be informed that the conditions required have been met to the satisfaction of this council.

DEER, DEER, DEER

'Twas the night before the deer hunt and nary a sound,
The moon shone brightly, with snow on the ground.
The deer in their native haunts flitting with glee,
Fearing the worst, but could not foresee.
While I in my dreamland with visions of deer,
Hoping to get one, even a bear.
—Monetta Phillips Outram.

Nomination Night At Legion Meeting

It was nomination night at the regular meeting of the Haliburton branch of the Canadian Legion held at the Legion hall on Friday night last.

Several of the members were nominated for the various posts and they have until the next meeting to make up their minds whether or not they will be standing for office.

The members were reminded of the memorial day service to be held at St. Paul's Anglican Church, Minden, this Sunday, November 13 at 11 a.m. The members of the Haliburton branch plus their band will line up at the OPP office at 10.30 for a parade to the church. Special speaker will be Rev. Gerald Gregson, former chaplain of the R.A.F. and also chaplain to Princess Margaret Rose. All veterans are asked to attend this service.

Secretary John Fergus informed the members that the "Highland Veteran" a club bulletin, was once again entered in competition and won third prize in class B.

Sick committee chairman Harold Douglas reported that comrade Jack Lyons was now in Sunnybrook hospital and would be pleased to receive letters and cards from the members. Under service bureaux, Harold Douglas reported that he is now dealing with four new applications.

Legion bandmaster, George Wheeler reporting on band activities, stated that the beginners' class of 20 players is well under way and also said that this class was possibly the most promising of any previous.

Poppy day is over and it was a great success. Much credit is due to the chairman John Fergus, who had the campaign well organized throughout the county.

The Legion, after looking for months for a piano, finally purchased one from Reg Booth in Minden. It will be used in the club room.

It will soon be Christmas and the Legion have set up a Christmas party committee for the kids. The group consists of Harold Bowen, Cliff Dawson, George Brennan and Oliver Barnum.

Friday, Nov. 11

Remembrance Day

November 11 will once again be observed in Haliburton this Friday morning.

A parade of veterans from the local branch will leave the Legion hall at 10.45 p.m. led by the Haliburton Legion Band. The parade will proceed down Haliburton's main street to the cenotaph.

Capt. Bill Kerr of the Salvation Army will be in charge of the service. It will open with the call to worship followed by the Lord's Prayer. The president's remarks will then be given by Wally Chambers. The Last Post will be sounded by comrade Vance English, followed by two minutes of silence. Following reveille will be the laying of the wreaths and reading of the names by Holly Sisson. The address will be given by Capt. Bill Kerr.

In these troubled times it is to be hoped that a large turnout will be on hand at this service to pay respects to the fallen dead.

Students Receive H.S. Awards

Haliburton County District High School held their commencement exercises on Friday evening last. The event attracted a larger number of scholars and interested citizens than were ever present at any previous occasion of this nature.

The program, which was under the direction of the principal, Mr. Frank Litt, was somewhat lengthy, but nevertheless it was a most enjoyable evening during which those in attendance witnessed the presentation of awards, certificates and graduation diplomas. They also listened to two fine selections by the choir.

Another pleasing feature of the evening was the ovation given to Mr. N. Sisco, former principal of the high school, when he appeared on the platform.

The valedictory address, always the highlight of these exercises was given by Miss Marilyn Way, former student of the high school and now attending Waterloo College. The address was well prepared and ably delivered.

Another interesting item on the program was the official opening of the new wing by Mr. A. L. Lakie, B.A., B. Paed, assistant superintendent of the Department of Education.

At the conclusion of the program those present were given the opportunity to inspect the new wing and enjoy refreshments served from the school cafeteria.

Grade Eight Grads Dinner

Minden—Friday evening saw the dinner for those students of Minden public school who passed into high school. This was served by the executive members of the Home and School Association and was enjoyed by all.

The opening was by singing grace and a welcome from the chairman.

After all had eaten of the tasty food, Mrs. Sears proposed a toast to the Queen followed by all singing God Save the Queen. She then called on Mr. Nelson Ward, public school inspector, to say a few words. He spoke a few words of congratulations and then proposed a toast to the graduates which was replied to by Miss Carolyn Coburn.

Mr. Morgan then added a few words of wisdom and presented honor certificates to Misses Coburn and Linda Wagg and a medal to the latter. He also presented swimming pins to Miss Carolyn Coburn and Len Lister. The latter then called on the ladies from the kitchen for a well earned thanks by all singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

A highlight of the evening was when Mr. Morgan blew out the candles on his birthday cake.

This is the first dinner given to these pupils and it will probably be continued in the future.

WOMEN TEACHERS'

FALL CONFERENCE

Region 4 of the Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario held its fall conference on October 29 in Parkside school, Ajax.

Representatives from Mr. N. E. Ward's inspectorate of Haliburton, north Victoria and West Peterboro counties were Mrs. Prentice, Miss Frost, Mrs. Fountain and Mrs. Brown.

Miss Mary Huff presided over the day's meeting which opened with a devotional period led by Rev. T. R. Norman. Following reports and announcements, the teachers participated in group discussions regarding superannuation, professional development, legislation and summer courses.

The Women's Auxiliary of St. Paul's United Church catered for a turkey dinner which was greatly enjoyed by the delegates and visitors who had risen early to be in Ajax by 9 o'clock.

Rev. G. Telford of St. Andrews United Church, Oshawa, chose "Fun in Language" as the topic for an address on types of humor. He used a wealth of illustrations to distinguish between wit which can be unpleasant and humor, which leaves the listener in a jolly mood.

Next year's conference will be held at Tweed and Kings-ton.

The Captain's Desk

CAPT. W. KERR
Salvation Army

Often there appears on my desk articles on a variety of subjects. A few of these I have found most interesting and it is one of these that I would like to pass on to you. My purpose is not to condemn or judge but that through the reading of the "Captain's Desk" series many might be blessed and be more anxious to serve and follow Jesus Christ.

GOD IS NOT A FORMULA

I'll never forget these words of one of my college professors, "God is a Father—not a formula."

What a simple, but powerful truth! Our God is not a formula—like water's H₂O. He is a Mighty Father. God isn't merely a part of getting our prayers answered. He is the answer Himself!

Why do some of our prayers get affirmative answers and others bring no immediate reaction? The answer is this: God, who is our Father knows what is best for us. He does not indulge us as spoiled children. For our own good He wisely includes some hard-to-take "No's" in response to requests that would not be best for us if answered affirmatively. At other times He gives us the disliked but very-needed command, "Wait."

Remember this, Christian, just because you prayed a certain way at a certain time at a certain place and you received a certain answer doesn't mean that your plan will work again.

Why? Because your Father is a God of infinite variety. He will not limit Himself to your man made formula. No! You must pray and take all the steps necessary to obey His will, and then trust Him for the results. And in His own good time, in His own all-purposeful way, God will give you "the desires of your heart."

Why? Because He has to answer your prayer and persistence? Oh, no! There is a higher, holier reason: God is your Father. He loves you, and wants Heaven's very best for you. His child.

"Lord, send me to China," David Livingstone prayed. But then the Opium War came, and no one was permitted to enter China. "Why, Lord, why?" Livingstone asked his Father through blinding tears of disappointment.

God answered, "I want you in Africa."

Soon the door of the Dark Continent swung open for him. Livingstone entered into the most fruitful ministry possible, no doubt greater than if he had gone to China. God, His Father knew best!

The Apostle Paul asked for his "thorn in the flesh" to be removed. But his request was not granted. Did Paul rebel because his prayer formula did not work? No. God was his Father, so Paul committed the matter to the One who makes no mistakes.

Are you discouraged, disappointed, and perhaps bitter because your prayers seem unanswered? Is your loved one still unsaved? Are you still buffeted in your body? Is your besetting sin still giving you a hard time?

Then look up! Tell your heavenly Father about it. Tell Him you can't understand the reasons, but that you are willing to say with Job, "Though he slay me, yet will I trust in him" (Job 13:15).

There comes a time in every life when the heavens seem brass, when prayers appear unanswered, and when no spiritual "formula" seems to work! The only thing you can do is trust in God, knowing that He is not a formula, but far better, an all seeing, all loving Father.

Romans 8:28 is still true: "We know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose." God still lives! You are not an orphan. You are a child of God if you have accepted Jesus Christ as your Saviour. It is He who said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life: no

IN QUEST OF YESTERDAY

A HISTORY OF HALIBURTON by NILA REYNOLDS

Eighteenth Instalment Chapter 10 WITH TRAP AND GUN

While Boyd and Irwin were employing hundreds of Haliburton county men to swing the axes and pull the saws which denuded thousands of acres of pine forest, another breed of men were harvesting a different crop with trap and gun. Even before the Indians were settled on their reservations traders and trappers penetrated to the heart of Haliburton county which abounded in fur bearing animals.

To the trappers who chose to settle in Stanhope, Guilford and Harburn townships, the chance to clear a small farm of their own served a double barreled purpose for it brought their families much closer to their trap lines than was possible before Haliburton county was opened for settlement.

Tradition has it that the first whites, other than surveyors and timber cruisers, to penetrate as far as the Redstone river which flows into the foot of Grass Lake, were Simon Boice (the old tombstones spell it Bice) and his young wife Mary DeMill Redner who traveled from Coboconk in a flimsy bark canoe to take up land beside the river which flows out of Grass Lake in the township of Stanhope. They were followed by Simon's brother, Isaac and his wife Betsy Barjanow and the patriarch of the Boice family, Pennsylvania, who was named for the state she was born in during 1810. Isaac settled on lot 1, concession 5, Guilford township, but when their children grew old enough to attend school the family returned to Coboconk to be educated until a school was built at Maple Lake in the early 1880's.

However, Pennsylvania Boice was not destined to enjoy many years in her new home so many hundreds of miles from her American birthplace. In 1884, 14 years after the death of her 33 year old son Simon, she was laid to rest in the sandy soil of the recently opened United church cemetery. Death also came early to Pennsylvania's 22 year old daughter Mary Jane, the wife of George Woodcock, who died in childbirth the following year. Since the death occurred in a lonely log cabin at Hawk Lake the young mother's body had to be transported all the distance from Hawk Lake to the United church cemetery on a hand sleigh.

Pennsylvania Boice's epitaph, carved on a curved white head stone conveyed with great labor from southern Ontario, is still legible: "Sweet is the sleep our mother takes 'til in Christ Jesus she awakes. Then shall her happy soul rejoice to hear her blessed Saviour's voice."

Another trapping family from Peterboro county, the Sawyers, also took up land in Stanhope near the Boices.

James Sawyer built a cabin, the foundations of which are still visible on the banks of the river which flows out of Grass Lake. Following the death of Simon Boice in 1870 James Sawyer married his widow and fathered two sons, Henry and Long Ben. A brother-in-law Durland Redner, settled on an adjoining farm and William Redner kept a general store on the Eldon Dawson property.

At Cameron's Lake Johnny Archer built his cabin and raised a family before moving to Dorset. Others who made their living by trapping were Jake Clancy, Bob Powell and John Bird whose hunting shack was built on the present location of Redstone lodge.

In Harburn township Dave Sawyer and most of his sons followed the same trade as did Ira Gregory, William McDonald and Emmerson Austin. It is a curious fact that the taste for life in the great outdoors is an inherited trait for most of the sons of trappers automatically following in their fathers' footsteps. Men who became successful guides for hunting and fishing parties from all over North America like Bill Gregory and the McDonald brothers, George and Wes, for whom a lake in Havelock township was named were simply following a family tradition as was Thomas Archer who founded Matabanick Inn which is still operated by his son Stanley. Ben Sawyer built Maple Lake lodge which catered to sportsmen and his nephew, Charlie Sawyer, still runs Loch Haven lodge situated on the same lake and entertains large parties during the fall hunt. West Guilford's first tourist house, Redstone lodge, was operated for many years by Rex Boice, a grandson of the renowned Isaac.

Packing a bark canoe, 50 pounds of flour and 100 pounds of equipment over a long portage and there are many such on the Mud Lake, Kennisis, North Lake route over the height of land to the Algonquin Park boundary is not a job for the unfit or faint hearted. For the seasoned trapper it was all in the day's work as were the winds which agitated the waves on big lakes like Kennisis and Redstone. Nothing less than gale force would deter these expert canoeists who navigated in weather which would be apt to make a Great Lakes seaman green.

Because the revenue from the fur sales was high in comparison with other industries of the time the school of thought is prevalent today that a trapper's life was a perpetually pleasant hunting expedition. On the contrary, it was an ordeal to tax the hardest. Without a good physique, nerves of steel, plus an intimate knowledge of the woodland and its creatures equal to an Indians, a season's trapping expedition would have been like a sentence to Siberia's salt mines.

In the trapper of Haliburton county survival in the wilderness was developed to its highest point. These self sufficient men would set out from their homes in the early fall in their home manufactured 12-foot bark canoes with only a few cooking utensils, a gun and sleeping equipment. Their supplies consisted of 100 pounds of flour, some soda and salt for their staple food "crumper" biscuits and a little tea and sugar. Everything else was supplied by trap and gun.

Although some trappers operated alone, partnerships, usually with some member of the same family, were more common. As the land became settled the trappers were forced to extend their lines further north until they crossed the height of land and included the region later incorporated into the Algonquin Park. Trapping zones were allocated in those early days by gentlemen's agreement. From the character of those proud and independent woodsmen one gets the impression that to trespass on another's territory with intent to harvest fur might have earned the intruder a well placed bullet or a thorough thrashing.

When fur was at its choicest and the cold most severe the Haliburton trapper would one January or February morning bid his family goodbye, buckle on his snowshoes, take up the cord of the sleigh or toboggan upon which his supplies were loaded and begin the long trek to the park. One woodsman asserts that the trip wore out several pairs of sled runners which were refitted on the spot with hand whittled replacements.

When night fell the traveler would scoop a burrow in the snow large enough for tent and fire or if he were more fortunate when darkness approached fine sanctuary in a friendly trapper's cabin. If the owner was not at home he still took advantage of his hospitality for cabins were never locked. Even food supplies were open for the convenience of bush travelers who knew that some day the opportunity would arise to repay the favor. However, those who took advantage of such hospitality were expected to replace the wood which they burned and leave the cabin tidy.

When such open handed hospitality began to be abused by hoodlums and strangers, the woodsmen were reluctantly forced to protect their property with locks. For those who had always enjoyed the warm comradeship and trust which existed between the men who traveled the wilderness trails, it was the end of an era.

Before the ice melted from the lakes, the trapper who had entered the park on snowshoes, began to manufacture his transportation in preparation for the open water. Aided only by a home made shaving horse to hold the timber solid for shaping, a home made canoe form and an axe and shaving knife and using materials growing at hand, the trapper, like the Indian before him, created a complete birch bark canoe and fashioned the paddles to propel it.

One trapper tells how he and his brother boiled maple syrup during the spring break up. Their father started a canoe on Friday and when the ice left the lake over the week end had his craft ready to start trapping on Monday morning.

The Archer family's main camp was located on an old clearing at Porcupine Lake, but their grounds included Dividing Lake and Bonnehore. Jim Sawyer and his sons worked up beyond Canoe Lake to Doe Lake and the Otter Slides while Durland Redner's lines extended through the Cache Lake area.

BANK OF MONTREAL REPORTS—

Consumer credit in Canada has multiplied eight times over since the war and now represents about 13.5% of annual personal disposable income, according to the Bank of Montreal's Business Review for September.

The review notes that consumer debt has risen from about $400 million immediately after the war to almost $3.5 billion now, whereas the national debt, by contrast, has risen only about 10%.

Defining the term "consumer credit," the bank says it is generally regarded as meaning "contractual obligations entered into by individuals, as consumers, but not as house buyers, for personal rather than business reasons."

Charge account debts, instalment buying and personal cash borrowing all come within the definition, the bank adds. By far the greatest increase has been in the last two categories, with personal borrowing recently emerging as the largest of the three.

Not Too Heavy

"In many respects, the greater expansion of consumer credit than of personal income during the postwar period has not represented an increasingly heavy burden of debt, but rather has reflected some of the deep-seated economic and social changes of our times," the review continues.

"To an important extent, the regular payments that flow in large volume to lending institutions these days simply replace cash outlays of earlier years for the same services in a different form."

If average rates of pay had not risen with little interruption during the postwar period, the bank says it is doubtful that people would be able to satisfy their desire to enjoy the benefits of having goods and services before, or while paying for them.

"At the same time there has been a significant redistribution of income, both during and since the war, that has resulted in a higher proportion of all families shifting into the middle income brackets."

"It is this shift, together with the general rise of income, that has broadened the base on which consumer credit keeps expanding to new high levels," the review concludes.
